Exclusive Species Available to the RIO COLLECTION

Santos Mahogany

The color ranges from rich salmon to reddish purple. With a particularly lustrous wavy grain this wood adds a beautiful dynamic to any floor. Santos mahogany has an excellent durability rating.

Cumuru

This wonderful wood is also known as Brazilian Teak. This beautiful floor varies from warm brown to light yellow in color with flecks of tannish gold. The species is very hard and durable and brings the warmth of the exotic tropics into your home.

Ipe

Color varies with yellowish tans, also olive brown with lighter or darker streaks. Striking color throughout dominates this wood. Also known as Brazilian Walnut this wood has a straight to irregular grain. Tough and resilient, this is a very strong wood which works well in today's busy home.

Peruvian Acacia

This wood matures to deep brown reddish tones. A yellow fleck is visible, adding a unique depth to the floor. The wood has a fine texture with striking color variation. An extremely hard durable wood, transforming your floor with its deep rich exotic warmth.

Peruvian Acacia with Walnut Stain

Peruvian Acacia with a walnut stain is a color that suites today's contemporary design. The stain gives the Acacia a more consistent appearance, but still allows the natural wood grain to show through. This floor is very rich and elegant, suitable for any room in the home.

Sucupira

Also known as Brazilian Walnut, Sucupira is the newest addition to the Rio Collection - this species is hard to ignore! Sucupira's natural brown and golden color tones make this wood attractive to all types of interior design. The grain is very linear with the occasional swirl, which truly accentuates the beauty of this marvelous exotic species.
